French Elections 2027

with Catherine Fieschi

Brittany, Paris, Picardy

April | First Round | 8 Nights

Cost: £TBC

Could the hard-right win the French presidency? France's Rassemblement National has been dominating the polls throughout Macron's presidency.

This 8-night tour examines the right's surging popularity – hitting the campaign trail with parties on all sides. The tour takes in the country's main challenges – national debt, public expenditure and anti-migrant sentiment.

Previously the centre and left have joined forces to thwart the right from gaining the presidency. What happens this time will have major implications for France and the world.
